

MSc Novica Stolic, engineer geologist

Education:

May 1980: Graduated engineer geologist, Faculty for mining and geology, geological department, direction of applied geophysics, University of Belgrade in Republic of Serbia;

June 2012: Master of science in geology, Faculty for mining and geology, geological department, University of Belgrade in Republic of Serbia;

Main qualifications:

Educational and professional qualifications for projecting, consulting and implementation of base (fundamental) and detailed geological, hydrogeological and geophysical explorations and investigations for finding and determining of metal, non-metal, energy and other mineral resources, groundwater and natural gas (drinking water, mineral, thermal and thermal-mineral waters), for preparation of basic geological maps, geophysical and other maps of the Republic of Macedonia, then prepare studies, analyzes, projects, elaborates, audits, reports and other technical documentation in the field of geology.

Title of work position:

Advisor for geophysics and geothermal research in Department of geophysics and geothermal energy in Geological Survey of the Republic of Macedonia.

Purpose of work position:

Implementation of functions in the scope of the Department and individual performance of the most complex tasks in the area of geological research, especially in areas of deep geological research.